FADE IN:

INT - BEDROOM - DAY

Pallavi (21), a college teen opens up her eyes in shock lying in the bed. She wakes up from the bed tired. We could tell she had cried the whole night. She sits in the bed for a couple of seconds, looks at herself in the wardrobe mirror. She sees herself as seeing someone new.

A phone vibrates. She turns around, takes the phone. puts her spectacles and reads. A text message from her professor. - Mail me the write-up. I'll read now.

She replies "5 mins sir"

She opens up her bag, takes a lot of stuff out, and takes her laptop. She opens up, presses the power button. The Password window appears. She looks at the screen and thinks. After few seconds, her hands slide to the keyboards and start typing. Password window nods no, it's not letting her in. She surprised. She types slowly, Nope not letting her in. She takes her hands off from the keyboard and thinks harder now.

Curious eyebrows relapse, she realizes something. She gets furiously upset after the thought. Her action becomes motionless. She doesn't know what to do !!

The phone vibrates again, the Text message from the professor "Am waiting"

Now she gets up from her bed and starts walking. She prepares herself for something. She sits back in the bed, takes her cellphone, go-to favourite contact, realizes that the contact she's looking for is not there. Go to the contact book, scroll down to "V" and clicks on Vikram(heart symbol) and takes a pause before she presses on the call button. Her finger hits the button, She keeps the phone in her ears and gets ready to face it.

phone rings... she's anticipating, Phone rings...she's anticipating, Phone rings...she's anticipating, phone rings, when she relax her muscles a bit - Phone attends sound.
